St Nicholas' Remembrance Service 10 November 10.45am

This traditional act of remembrance will be held firstly at the Parish War memorial by the Church lych gate and then inside the Church.

The centenary in 2018 was an event to treasure and the Parish will gather together again this year to remember those who made the ultimate sacrifice for us all.

Stir-up Sunday service 24 November 4pm Coronation Hall

Stir-up Sunday is a centuries-old tradition where cooks spend the last Sunday before Advent 'stirring up' the Christmas pudding. Dating back to Victorian times, the whole family took a turn at stirring the Christmas pudding and making a wish.

Coronation Hall, East Grafton

Community Market & Brunch

Meet & Eat - Saturday 30 November, 9.30am - 12.30pm

Coronation Hall is getting into the Festive spirit by inviting everyone in the Parish to come along to the Hall and enjoy a delicious freshly cooked breakfast (all provided by the Hall itself). This is an opportunity catch up with family, friends and neighbours before the Christmas rush begins.

In addition, there will be various local stall holders where you can pick up Christmas Gifts, local produce and see what the Parish has to offer you from our local entrepreneurs - see what is available from them right on your doorstep!

If you would like to know more or be involved, please get in contact with Natalie by email at hall@graftonparish.com

Our Doctor writes about screening for Cancer

Screening hit the news recently following the release of a Government review to establish why there is a decline in the number of people attending. Recommendations included that patients must be able to attend cancer screening during evenings and weekends, and in locations close to their home or work. Outdated and old equipment should be replaced and a new IT system is required. The report said the current screening service saves over 10,000 lives a year.

Screening tests are not perfect and have some risks. You may get a false positive result (changes detected which are not really there) or a false negative result (changes are missed). So it is still important to be aware of symptoms. You need to be registered with a GP to get your screening invitations.

Cervical screening

Cervical cancer is rare under the age of 25 so the cervical screening programme invites women from age 25 to 64 for screening. You are invited every 3 years if you are aged 25 to 49 and then every 5 years until the age of 64. Since 2008, girls aged 12 and 13 have been offered a vaccination against the human papilloma virus (HPV) and from this September boys will also receive the vaccination. However, the vaccination does not protect against other types of HPV that are linked with cervical cancer. This means that girls who have had the HPV vaccine still need to go for cervical screening from age 25.

Breast Screening

Overall, the breast screening programme finds cancer in about 8 out of every 1,000 women having screening. The NHS Breast Screening Programme invites all women aged between 50 and 70 for a mammogram (X-ray) every 3 years. If you are older than 70, you can still have screening every 3 years but you won't automatically be invited and you will have to contact your local breast screening unit to make an appointment. If you are younger than 50, your risk of breast cancer is generally very low. Mammograms are more difficult to read in younger women because their breast tissue is denser. However, UK guidelines recommend that women with a moderate or high risk of breast cancer because of a family history should start having screening mammograms every year in their forties. If you are younger than 40 and have an increased risk of breast cancer, you should be offered yearly MRI scans from the age of 30 or 40 depending on your level of risk. If you are known to have a gene mutation that increases your risk of breast cancer then screening is recommended to start in your 20s. If you are concerned about a higher risk of breast cancer due to a family history, talk to your GP.

Bowel Screening

On your 60th birthday you will be sent a 'poo pot in the post'. Bowel cancer screening saves lives. If detected early the survival rate for bowel cancer is 90% at 5 years and yet this has the lowest uptake rate with only 50 to 58% for people being screened in the last 6 months (breast 74%, cervical 70-74%). Again, if you have a higher risk of bowel cancer due to a family history or ulcerative colitis or Crohn's disease, screening guidelines are different and you will be offered a colonoscopy (a telescope is inserted into the bowel) at a younger age.

Next month I will write about Abdominal aorta aneurysm screening (AAA), NHS Health checks and why the prostate specific antigen (PSA) is not a screening test for prostate cancer.

I will always recommend and encourage you to attend screening.

Stay well, best wishes Dr Angela Paddon

Autumn Walking A further seven walking routes and four off-road cycling routes have been added recently to the Visit Pewsey Vale website – www.visitpewseyvale.co.uk. Six walks from the Bedwyn Footpaths Group are also available on there for you to download and enjoy!

Pre-Christmas clear out!

A blue Bag2School bag has been delivered with your Community News so why not take the opportunity for a clear out and help us raise funds?

Fill the bag with good quality used clothes, bags, shoes, belts and more (see side of bag for full details) and drop it off at Sunflowers by 9am on Monday 9 December.

Spread the word to family and friends - you can also use black bags if you have lots to clear out.

Our Farmer writes

25 days of rain in a row, producing more than 2 months' rainfall means that we have had a very frustrating time recently, when we would normally have been planting next year's crops.

Now the weather has started to change and it's all systems go to get as much planted as possible before it rains again (as is forecast). In a normal year we would start planting wheat and barley around the 20th September (when the rain started this year) and be finished by early October. This year we started a month late. Hopefully this will not have any great effect on next year's yields and as long as the weather holds for long enough for us to plant everything that we have planned, we can remain hopeful.

While the weather was holding us up I was able to go to Oslo for a conference to discuss the future of food and fuel production from farming. It was a fascinating conference where leaders from business and politics were brought together with students and entrepreneurs. This made for excellent discussions and hopefully the results of these will help to forge a future of greener energy and food production.

Thoughts on the farm are now turning to preparations for winter. This is going to be the first time in over 50 years that our cattle will stay outside rather than bringing them into the more unnatural environment of the barns. We are planning where they will spend their time moving around the farm from field to field grazing on fields that do not have anything to harvest in them. This allows the grass fields time to rest and recover and gives us the chance to integrate the livestock onto the arable land which has not had cattle on it for many years.

Putting livestock onto arable land is a really good way to kick start the soil biology as the microbes in the gut of cattle are almost identical to the microbes in a healthy soil.

Fingers crossed for some helpful weather to finish planting and get the newly planted crops off to a positive start.
